Carroll and Company will provide information regarding practice opportunities that are available in Northern California. Both Carroll and Company and the Prospective Buyer realize the importance of confidentiality in this matter and desire to protect the professional interests of the practitioners involved.

Therefore, Carroll and Company and the Prospective Buyer agree as follows:

CONFIDENTIALITY

The information regarding practice opportunities is proprietary and confidential in nature. The information is being supplied to the practitioner(s) signed below for the express purpose of evaluation practice opportunities for possible purchase and is to be protected from any form of publication or reproduction.

PROFESSIONAL SECRETS

It is understood between Carroll and Company and the Prospective Buyer that they will be dealing with confidential information regarding both parties. Each party agrees that s/he will not disclose to anyone, directly or indirectly any of such confidential matters or use them other than in the course of negotiations for possible practice purchase. All documents that Carroll and Company provides or other confidential information that might be related to such practice(s) are the exclusive property of Carroll and Company and its clients. The other party shall not apply or in any way reproduce the information without the express written consent of Carroll and Company. The other party will return all information to Carroll and Company when s/he determines s/he is not interested in pursuing that practice opportunity. When visiting offices of a seller, under no circumstances shall any information or documents be removed from that practice without written consent thereto first being obtained.

In the event that I later decide that I am not personally interested in pursuing the purchase of the practice, and I know another professional who may be interested, I will have that individual contact Carroll & Company directly for information on the practice, rather than provide the information myself. In addition, I will return all information and copies of the information on the practice to Carroll & Company.
